

Secondary Steel-work experts

Watermark were commissioned to carry out various secondary steel work right from the start of the project providing fabrication and installation services to virtually every area of the project.

Watermark Site Manager Duncan Walsh quickly became a well established and integral member of the project.

Watermark's capacity for flexibility and versatility was soon realised by the main contractor who recommended Watermark to several associate contractors on-site.

The project is now in its third year with Watermark continuing to provide its expert services.
